Glades General OKs new emergency room

BELLE GLADE — A new emergency room at Glades General Hospital, with triple the floor space of the existing facility and the capability of treating double the number of patients with a higher quality of care, was given the go-ahead Tuesday night by the Southwest Palm Beach County Hospital Board.

Hospital Administrator Patrick Lennon presented preliminary drawings of the proposed Emergency Room to the board. Belle Glade architect Chester Cone, who did those drawings, was also chosen as the architect.

Aside from the size, the major differences between the proposed emergency room is that the ten treatment areas are specialized in many cases, such as for pediatric care, cardio-vascular, orthopedics and casts and two major trauma rooms.

The new ER will also include its own X-ray room and a decontamination room, where patients who have been doused with pesticide, for instance, could go through a high volume shower to wash off the chemicals, even if they should be on stretchers.

"This will give us the capability of a trauma center," Lennon said. He added a number of features included in the plans, such as the decontamination room, were incorporated at the suggestion of Dr. Richard Thomas, the hospital's Emergency Services Director.

The new facility is designed to fill in an "L" at the southeast corner of the hospital, squaring off that rear corner of the building.

Other features incorporated into the plans include:

- Separate entrances for the public and the hospital's ambulances.
- A registration area which provides full vision for the registration personnel to both the waiting area and lobby off the main entrance and the treatment area.
- Restroom facilities off the lobby which allow access by wheelchair victims; lounge areas for the nurses and doctors, including a bed in the doctor's area for the on-duty physician.
- Quick access to the hospital's main surgery and obstetrics areas.

Lennon noted the new emergency suite will consist of about 7,000 square feet of space compared to the existing 2,500 square feet of space occupied for emergency purposes.

Estimating construction costs anywhere between $30 and $100 a square foot, he said the cost of the new facility could run anywhere from $300,000 to $700,000.

Pressed for a figure by board member Clarence Pate, Lennon estimated a price tag at "half a million dollars." He noted the board had already allocated $100,000 in the existing budget for the project and said the rest of the funding would be paid for through revenue bonds, so the users of the facility would pay for it.

"This will be a big step forward for the community," he said, "in terms of medical care. Basically, it's patterned after the trauma center at the St. Louis hospital where Dr. Dick Thomas was before he came here... but scaled down to our needs of course."

"In combination with the Advanced Life Support System ambulance service we're now providing," he said, "I think it will provide a first class service to the area that will attract new physicians we need."

Lennon told the board members he presented the plan to the medical staff at their first meeting this month and they were not in favor of it.

He said Dr. Luis Guerrero objected to the new facility because it would attract new doctors to the Belle Glade area. Dr. J. Allen Baker, on hand for the meeting, confirmed Lennon's statement but added that he and Dr. Roy Baker approved of it.

Dr. Baker said he had opposed a previous plan which Lennon had presented to the board because it would have been located in front of the hospital entrance. That plan was scrapped by similar objections from board members.

Lennon said the existing Emergency Room is processing 15,000 patients a year now, averaging out to some 40 patients a day.

With that number of patients coming through, he noted, one of the more important aspects of the new facility will be that walk-in patients won't have to wait so long in the waiting room before being assigned to a treatment cubicle.

Lennon said the next steps, after receiving the board's go-ahead Tuesday night, will be to get the approval of the preliminary plans by the State Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, have detailed drawings and specifications drawn up by Cone and get those approved by the Regional Health Planning Council.

All that, he estimated, will take about two or three months. He estimated that construction could begin in about six months.

In other action concerning the Emergency Room, the board recommended a policy, to be presented to the medical staff, that physicians, at their own discretion, who have served the hospital for 25 years be allowed to erase their names from the list of doctors serving on call in the emergency room.

Lennon brought the matter before the board, he said, because Dr. Baker had asked to be dropped from the rotation duty. He said he felt the request should be granted because a similar request was granted last year for Dr. Roy Brown. Dr. Brown had served for 25 years and Dr. Baker said he has served for 26 1/2 years.

While the medical staff had readily acceded to Dr. Brown's request a year ago, however, Lennon said the staff refused to go along with Dr. Baker's request.

Dr. Baker said no reason was given for the medical staff's refusal. Lennon said that many hospitals drop doctors from rotation after 15 years of service and the physician in question has reached the age of 55. Dr. Baker said he is 59 and he believes he has served in the capacity long enough.

During the discussion, it was pointed out that Everglades Memorial Hospital in Pahokee as hired house doctors to take over emergency room operations and Lennon said the same could be provided at Glades General with the employment of two more fulltime physicians to back up Dr. Thomas.

While they took no action on the house doctors, the board

Three injured at GCI

by Wayne Wallace

Two inmates and a guard were hospitalized Tuesday night during what was described as an "emergency situation" at Glades Correctional Institution.

According to GCI superintendent Robert Turner, at approximately 6 p.m. an argument broke out in the 'B' dormitory involving several black and white inmates.

Guard James Guy was struck with a wooden stool when he tried to intercede in the argument, which resulted in one prisoner receiving a stab wound and another being beaten, Turner said.

"We are assuming the stab wound was made with some sort of homemade weapon," Turner said. "We haven't recovered the weapon yet."

Extra security will be maintained in the dorms for several nights as a precaution, but it's all quiet at present," he said. During and after the disturbance, Palm Beach County Sheriff's Deputies were called in, as were off-duty GCI guards. All prison lights were turned on and inmates were locked up in their respective compounds. Several prisoners returning from field labor at cattle ranches were forced to remain outside the institution until the disturbance was over. The prisoners were allowed to enter at approximately 7 p.m.

A spokesman for the GCI said that adult education will be resumed as of Wednesday. All classes were cancelled Tuesday.

Turner said the prisoners and Guy were treated at Glades General Hospital, where Guy was released at approximately 8 p.m.

"Inmate Raymond Young, who is serving an eight-year sentence for burglary, underwent surgery for a stab wound he received during the altercation. He is in stable but guarded condition at Glades General," Turner said.

The other prisoner, William Deese, serving a life sentence for first degree murder, was reported in fair condition, Turner said.

An investigation into the causes of the disturbance will be conducted by the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Department and

Garbage rises, taxes lower

The Pahokee city Council Tuesday night unanimously approved the final reading of an ordinance that would hike Pahokee's residential garbage collection fee from $6 to $7.50.

The hike came after citizens complained about high property taxes and suggested raising garbage fees and lowering millage rates so the city's income base would not depend solely on property owner's taxes. The Council also approved a tax cut of 1.5 mills to 6.5, or $6.50 for every $1,000 of assessed valuation.

However, Ed Lahey, a spokesman for Automated Systems, Inc., a sanitation company currently negotiating for a contract with the city, said the hike "would probably cause some changes in the present contract we are working with. Lahey would not elaborate as to what those changes would be.

The Council apparently was not entirely satisfied with the terms of the present contract either.

"This contract is not worded like they sat up here and told us what they would do if we gave it to them," Chairman William McKinstry said. "I feel like the city could do the same job just as well and probably cheaper. If we're going to start leasing out all the city's services why don't we fire all the city employees and lease the whole city," councilman George Rashley said.

The Council also expressed displeasure at some of the terms, or the lack thereof, in the contract.

"There's nothing in that contract about them paying the city for doing the administrative work under their system. And that's one thing they said they would do," Mayor Noma Norman said.

The sanitation contract may be opened for bids from competitors as a result of the Council's concern over the present contract. Public Works Director Donnie Martin said he would have another contract available from

City building troubles spread

BELLE GLADE — The city commission ordered the demolition of racquetball and handball courts built and opened at Airport Park only a few months ago as when the city found cracks in the floor slab and walls and other city-constructed projects over the past two years.

Public Works Director Ron Sigmon said he believed the city could salvage the floor slab of the courts, with some resurfacing, to use for shuffleboard courts but the rest of the $30,000 building would be mostly wasted.

The decision came Monday night when the commission learned a report projected a cost of $14,700 to do some of the repairs would be incurred by a process which had been recommended a week ago in a special session.

Public Utilities Director Kenneth Retterer, who was in charge of building the courts, said then that he had been informed the entire repair job could be accomplished for about $3,200.

The courts were closed about three weeks ago when the city found cracks in the floor slab and walls and that both the floor and footings were sinking.

The city's consulting engineer advised the commission at that time that repairs required because of "numerous violations of the Southern Standards Building Code" would cost $25,000, a cost which was revised upward later when damage not immediately seen was uncovered.

In the meantime, Mayor Tom Altman said Tuesday he had heard reports of problems in three other projects Retterer had been involved in: a culvert installed at the entrance to Airport Park, boat ramps installed at the old marina in 1978 when the lake level was raised and an addition to the country club earlier this year.

According to one city employee, who asked not to be named, the problem with the culvert, also installed in 1978, was that the forms hadn't been properly put together and were "blown out" when the concrete was poured.

The boat ramps, according to former City Manager Robert Sanders in a Tuesday telephone interview, were the subject of two or three attempts.

"We didn't have the capabilities to do the underwater work," Sanders said, "and eventually the

The past may be the key to the present and vice-versa but they've gone too far this time.

The Vatican, at the express wishes of Pope John Paul II, is reviewing the heresy conviction of Galileo, the 17th century astronomer condemned for claiming the earth revolved around the sun (imagine that!).

Galileo would turn over in his grave if he knew what was being done in his behalf (his descendants have spent many a sleepless night, I'm sure, worrying of their heretical ancestry). For Galileo would want history to show that he was condemned for his beliefs and would fight any effort to change his conviction.

Legend says as Galileo arose from his knees after renouncing his theory that the sun was the center of the universe, he muttered under his breath, "And still it moves."

It would seem to me that the head of the most powerful Christian religion on earth would have more important matters to occupy himself with than pardoning age-old so-called heretics.

However the Vatican is not the only institution preoccupied with the past. The United States Congress, after years of pressure from a relatively small number of interested parties, voted in 1978 to restore the citizenship of Confederate President Jefferson Davis. Davis was the only member of the Confederacy not granted universal amnesty in 1876.

However, could his voice be heard, he would be the first to speak out against it. As with Galileo, why should he seek in death what he desisted to seek in life?

Lawmakers and the proponents of these post-humous exoneration and pardon proposals would do well to examine the facts surrounding these measures before thrusting an unwanted reprieve upon the deceased.

In any event it is foolishness to try to right wrongs done to the dead. They are past caring. But if we must tamper with the memory of the departed, then it would better be done in accordance with their wishes, and not ours.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Now that we have gone through the political play-offs and we are getting ready to clean up the mess this country is in. The best way to start is to exercise one of our most precious rights, the right to vote. I pray to God that every registered voter gets the polls on Nov. 4 and cast their votes so that we can show the world that the American dedication to independence and freedom is alive and well.

The American people have been betrayed by their President and Congress. We have been lied to and robbed, through inflation, by a bunch of ineffective and insensitive politicians. For four years we have been saddled with a President who is determined to go down in history as the great peace maker no matter how much it costs the American people. Four years ago I was for Jimmy Carter because I was one of millions of Americans who believed he was really going to do the things he promised. I thought he was a man who could get things done. Well he has gotten things done all right, he has done us out of our savings, done us out of our money's buying power and done us out of all respect by foreign governments.

America's strength of character is hit an all time low when pipsqueaks like Fidel Castro and that nut from Iran think they can influence an American presidential election by releasing our people that Mr. Carter and Congress have allowed to be held hostage.

I do not advocate getting rid of all the politicians who are running for re-election, just those who are not really working to help us. As an example, most people would think that in a time like this when the price of everything is so high that at least our county commission would do their best to see that our property taxes don't increase but that's not the case because only one of the commissioners, Peggy Evatt, voted against a tax increase. We should keep the best and dump the rest.

Now is the time to start cleaning up the mess this country is in. The best way to start is to exercise one of our most precious rights, the right to vote. I pray to God that every registered voter gets the polls on Nov. 4 and cast their votes so that we can show the world that the American dedication to independence and freedom is alive and well.

Dear Editor:

At the general election on November 4, Amendment Number One is a legislative attempt to do away with the Constitution Revision Commission, a unique device which provides the people an opportunity for review of their State Constitution on a periodic basis. If Amendment Number One is adopted, a precious and cherished right of the people of the State of Florida will be taken away. It is better their most fundamental law, the State Constitution, will be substantially chilled and curtailed. The State Constitution is not mandated for review again under the existing Constitution Revision Commission process until 1998. This "seemingly and presumably" attempt by power-hungry legislators to drive future Floridians out of an opportunity to address constitutional issues in 1998 is thus "power politics" at its worst.

As Chairman of the 1968 Constitution Revision Commission, I consider periodic constitutional revision a fundamental right of the people. Its establishment in the 1968 Florida Constitution was to me the single most significant achievement in modern government reform. When I presented what is now the 1968 Florida Constitution to the Florida Legislature in January of 1967, I said,

Amendments are 3 for 5

Unlike the five amendments on the Oct. 7 runoff ballot, five on the general election ballot, at least in two of the cases, deal with basic political philosophies and should be given careful consideration.

Taking the amendments one by one, we recommend:

No. 1: Proposing amendments to Section 5 of Article II and Sections 2 and 5 of Article XI of the State Constitution to abolish the Constitution Revision Commission.

The Constitutional Revision Commission never was the darling of the legislature and this is one proposed amendment which should be no surprise. Granted, the commission's recommendations were amendments went down in flames two years ago but some of those propositions were pretty good and were no reflection on the process.

The fact is that it's virtually impossible to get an amendment tacked onto the state constitution unless it goes through the legislature. The process should be difficult or there would be entirely too many amendments cluttering up the framework of state law.

But the fact also is that as of right now, the commission is about the only way the public has input into the process, other than by lobbying the legislature. The commission deserves at least one more chance before it joins other relics of the past.

Vote No on Number One.

Number Two: Proposing the creation of Section 23 of Article I of the State Constitution establishing a constitutional right of privacy.

This amendment looks, on the face of it, to be the greatest thing to come down the pike, but could be the worst sleeper amendment the state's ever faced according to some people.

Although it's hard to get overly excited about the state's "right" to poke its collective nose into what a person and his or her family do within the privacy of their own home, the track record of privacy amendments in other states isn't too encouraging.

In Alaska, for instance, a very similar amendment was used as the basis for a court ruling which allows a citizen to grow as much marijuana as can be consumed in the household. Even that may not seem too bad to many people but the amendment could also, according to staff analysis in the state senate, depending on whether the courts interpret it strictly or liberally, bring to a screeching stop the right of the state to issue search warrants, install phone taps, or use other standard search and seizure tools. Court orders would be prohibited because the individual's right to privacy would be guaranteed under the constitution, which would override statutory law.

Privacy is a right we should jealously guard, and protections against unreasonable intrusion are already available. This amendment could open a Pandora's Box we could all regret later.

Vote No on Amendment Two.

Number Three: Proposing an amendment to the State Constitution to provide that the publication of the title of a bill in the legislative journals shall serve as the first of the three readings required by the State Constitution.

It's ironic that this question should go to a referendum at a time when so many people are attempting to retain or gain a seat in the state legislature, where so many of the legislators are so busy, they don't have time to listen to proposed laws being read into the record.

Unfortunately, it's a fact of life in Tallahassee that many of the laws are read before what amounts to empty chambers because the lawmakers will be electing Tuesday are too busy or too bored to hear them.

It's also a fact of life that few of the legislators depend on the public readings to acquaint themselves to impending legislation. They've either explored it already or they'll never know what's in the bills in question, so we might as well save taxpayers' time and money by going along with this proposal. But it might be a good time to ask the candidates if they'll be interested enough to make sure they know what they'll be voting for next April.

Vote Yes for Number Three.

Number Four: Proposing an amendment to Section 14 of Article VII of the State Constitution to allow the issuance of state bonds for water facilities as authorized by general law.

This amendment would allow cities and other local governments to use the full faith and credit of the state as a guarantee to sell water system improvement bonds, allowing considerable savings over the revenue bonds now available.

It's a fact that the interest rate of full faith and credit bonds, which pledges that the bonds will be paid off even if revenues aren't enough, is lower than the revenue bonds and even one percentage point of a bond that amounts to millions of dollars would amount to a considerable savings over the life of a bond issue, which would also decrease the necessary water rates.

The state already has the right to issue such bonds for sewer projects and solid waste disposal facilities and this amendment would only add water to the list of qualifying services.

Vote For Number Four.

Number Five: Proposing an amendment to Section 9 of Article XII of the State Constitution replacing the 40-year limitation upon the bonds secured and payable by revenues from the tax. Proposing to authorize counties to utilize such revenues for road maintenance as authorized by law rather than just for the acquisition or construction of roads. Proposing to allow the use of revenue other than those from the tax and pledged tolls to pay bonds secured by the tax. Proposing to include within the formula used to determine the debt service requirements on such bonds legally available pledged revenues other than those from the tax and from tolls.

This amendment is badly needed as a vehicle to provide the state and counties a chance to finance road construction via a bond issue spread out over enough time so the payments can be afforded. As it now stands, such bonds must be paid off by the year 2008.

The other primary change made by the amendment is that the second gas tax funds already being used by counties for road construction (two cents out of the eight cents per gallon tax on gasoline) can also be used for road maintenance.

That factor, if the amendment is passed, will primarily benefit rural counties with slow growth rates and which may need little construction but more funds available for maintenance. It is also something the state's urban counties, such as Palm Beach, will have to weigh carefully before using or we could find ourselves with even less money available for construction or reconstruction than we now have. This amendment won't solve the problem of finding enough funds for roadwork but it will help.

Vote For Number Five.

Safe spooks

Pint-sized goblins, fairies and assorted spooks will be roaming the streets Friday night, calling for a bit of extra alertness on the part of everybody in the community.

Halloween is a time for fun and games and no one wants to see the occasion turn into a time for mourning because of an accident, but the fact remains this is one holiday when accidents seem to beg for a chance to happen.

Caution can start with the parents sending their children out on their trick or treat rounds by making sure the smaller fry are escorted by someone old enough to keep them out of the way of traffic and by making sure their costumes aren't the type that keep them from seeing where they're going or that could turn into an instant funeral pyre.

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

Will there always be an England? Believe it or not, that one question made up an entire mid-term exam in a computer science course I took once in political science at the University of Florida and it took me 32 pages to answer it but this time it's easier.

Not if I have anything to say about it. No sir! No more England...at least not in the Florida Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice Arthur England, although I knew he was up there, really made his presence on the court known to me through a column written by Steve Mitchell of the Palm Beach Post last November.

Actually, the column started out talking about the cruel plight of the people on death row at Raiford, specifically the cruel plight of Jesse Raymond Rutledge, whose appeal for a rehearing was denied by the state supreme court shortly before Steve wrote the column.

Rutledge's claim to fame was the attempted extermination of the family of Wiley Williams in the small town of Hawthorne in Alachua County, back in 1974.

Wiley, himself, was at work one night (like a lot of us, he couldn't make it on one job so he was moonlighting on a second job from 6 p.m. to 2 a.m.) and his wife, Anna, their 2-year-old son and their three young sons, Wiley Jr., 10, Harold, 9 and Andrew, 7 were at home behind locked doors when the neighbors heard screams coming from the Williams house.

The neighbor also saw Wiley Jr. run out the front door, being chased by a larger man who caught the boy and dragged him into the house. The good neighbor, like all too many people nowadays, decided to mind his own business and not get involved.

Shortly after midnight, a telephone operator plugged into a light on her switchboard and didn't get an answer but did hear a woman screaming in the background. "Please don't: I won't let anyone." She also heard children screaming in the background.

The operator relayed the call to the Alachua County Sheriff's Office and a tape of the screams was made but efforts to trace the call were unsuccessful. The tape was still running at 6:30 a.m. and recorded the footfalls of Wiley Williams. Sir, when he returned home from work, as well as his anguished cries of, "Anna, Anna! What happened, boys? Who did this to you? Oh, Lordy!"

The tape could, however, record the carnage facing the hardworking father. It couldn't show the expression on his face when he walked through the open door, with the house lights burning long after they should have been off, and he saw his 7-year-old son, Andrew, covered with blood from two stab wounds in his chest.

It could depict the scene in his bedroom, where he found his wife on a blood-soaked bed, where she had been raped and murdered by stab wounds a pathologist later said were "too numerous to count," including several wounds which had nearly severed her left breast.

The tape could show Wiley Jr. in his bunk bed, stabbed to death by two would-be murderers, it couldn't show the 32 stab wounds in the still-living body of his third son, Harold, who required open heart surgery.

Harold and Andrew survived the horrors of the night and Rutledge made a positive identification of Rutledge as the murderer and rapist.

Rutledge was convicted of first degree murder on Nov. 4, 1975. The jury recommended the death penalty and that's the sentence handed down by the trial judge.

On appeal, Rutledge's attorneys argued for a rehearing. Rutledge's tape had been mentioned, that his trial wasn't speedy enough and that a 9-year-old boy, Harold, had been allowed to testify against him.

The attorneys also argued the crime wasn't sufficiently atrocious or heinous to warrant the death penalty.

In reply, the trial judge noted that the tape had not been played for the jury in the first part of the trial, that dealing with Rutledge's guilt or innocence, at his orders. Nor had a picture of Anna Rutledge, showing the many stab and slash wounds, been allowed as evidence. They were, however, allowed in the second part of the trial dealing with Rutledge's sentence after he'd been found guilty.

"One could almost visualize the stroke of the knife as the mother and each of her children would scream," the judge said later, describing the court scene when the tape was played back. "The defendant was heard to say, 'bleed, bleed, bleed, die, die, die,' and a filth reference this court will not record in this judgment."

"The nerve-wracking screaming, pleading and crying lasted approximately 23 minutes," the judge wrote. "However, due to the tremendous emotional impact of the taped voices upon the jury and persons in the courtroom, the state attorney directed the operator of the tape equipment to stop the tape after several minutes, but not until after the reference referred to above had been heard. The court, however, heard the entire tape."

The state supreme court had decided, citing the judgment, that the crimes clearly fell within the court's contemplation of "especially heinous, atrocious or cruel" and upheld the sentence.

The decision wasn't unanimous, however. Chief Justice J. England dissented.

Like I said, that was when England really made an impression on me.

The second time was last week, when Supervisor of Elections Jackie Winchester sent me a sample ballot for the Nov. 4 general election. Guess whose name was listed among the Florida Supreme Court justices up for confirmation on Nov. 4, 1980 - the fifth anniversary of the conviction of Jesse Raymond Rutledge for the first degree murder of Anna Williams and her son, Wiley Williams, Jr.?

Arthur J. England...that's who.

Now I ask you: Will there always be an England?

Take part in government...or else-- an editorial

With more and more people turning off and dropping out of their responsibility of casting their ballots, usually with the argument that their vote doesn't matter, a comment made by one of the political candidates at Saturday night's Meet the Candidate Night might be in order.

"Unless you take part in government," Jeffery Burke said, "government will take you apart."

Without endorsing Burke or any of the other candidates or their platforms, that's one comment that makes a lot of sense to us.

It's a fact of political life that government has what is termed a will to expand, meaning elected officials and government bureaucrats see their roles as constantly expanding; that to retrench is, by its very definition, bad.

And it's common knowledge that expansion can't take place without incurring more expenses... which have to be paid for by the taxpayers.

It's also a fact of political life that virtually no legislation provides more freedom for the individual citizen while virtually every new law amounts to some additional restriction of citizens' rights and freedoms.

Unless we take part in our government, we can expect nothing less than a continuing restriction of our freedoms and increasingly heavy tax burden.

The only salvation we have is to do our best to ensure the best candidates possible get into office and we can't do that by avoiding the polls next Tuesday.

It's your privilege and right to vote. Use it!

Pahokee and South Bay Friday evening should be extra careful because even though the costumes manufactured for the holiday usually incorporate dayglow material to be sure they reflect headlights, some costumes are still homemade and may not be seen so easily.

In another area, it would be hoped this Halloween could be an improvement over those in the past in that it doesn't turn into another night to throw rocks and bottles at cars in the downtown area.

It's hard to conceive how anyone could use Halloween or any other holiday as an excuse to vandalize people's property and injure them but that mentality has manifested itself in the past and last year led to the formation of the Human Relations Council and the Junior Human Relations Council.

The Rev. David Evans, chairman of the Council and sponsor of the Junior Council, said both groups are concentrating their efforts this week on the Beautification Month parade Saturday morning. Hoping people busy with the parade and the clean-up effort won't be thinking in terms of vandalism Friday night.

A free plant clinic and a seminar on homeowners growing citrus trees will be held Nov. 7 by Palm Beach County urban horticulturist at the Belle Glade Extension Office Auditorium on US 441 north of Belle Glade.

"Many of our area citrus are now beginning to mature," Joyner said, "and citrus are certainly one of the most popular fruits used in South Florida landscaping. Growing citrus, however, does take some knowledge as to proper selection, planting and pest control."

Joyner said he will conduct a slide-illustrated seminar from 9:30 to 11 a.m. on citrus care and in the selection, use and pest control. A number of pamphlets will also be given out at the meeting.

The plant clinic is designed to attack individual problems. Bulletins on various plant problems are also available and Joyner said if someone

CAN'T SLEEP... TRY THESE

It is estimated that 15 out of every 100 adults in this country have difficulty falling asleep.

There are many approaches to this problem that do not involve medications. Individuals have often conquered sleeping difficulties by performing the following:

• GO TO BED ONLY WHEN TIRED: The clock may indicate that it is bedtime but, if not tired, read a relaxing book, knit, or work with crafts.

• TRY A LIGHT BEDTIME SNACK: A glass of warm milk is a good example.

• AVOID USE OF ALCOHOL: Although alcohol is a sedative and may tend to bring on sleep, the sleep obtained is shallow and not fulfilling.

• AVOID COFFEE, TEA, CHOCOLATE, AND SOFT DRINKS CONTAINING CAFFEINE: Caffeine is a stimulant and may keep the body "on edge" for up to twenty hours. In sensitive individuals, a morning cup of coffee may be preventing sleep at 4 AM!

• ALWAYS AWAKE AT A REGULAR TIME: Even if you have had a poor night's sleep, arise at a predetermined time each morning.

"The single most important thing that this historic Legislature can do - is to give the people forevermore the power to amend and revise their Constitution in the future without the interference of the Legislature, or without the interference or the veto of the Chief Executive. The people themselves should have the right to initiate changes in their Constitution in the future if they want to do so. If no other thing is achieved here, that, in and of itself, justifies the complete constitutional revision.

I reiterate then that the most important thing in this modern Constitution is to recognize that conditions will change and that the people's demands for government will change. Neither the Legislature nor the Executive should be allowed in the future to block constitutional amendment or constitutional revision. The people must be the great repository of power to change the Constitution. If this is achieved in this historic session, it will have served a monumental purpose."

The people by their votes authorized in the 1968 Constitution a 20 year review process by a Constitution Revision Commission as one of several ways for the people to curb a willful Legislature. For many years, Florida's political process had been bogged down by a malapportioned Legislature, the so-called "pork chop" gang, which for too long dominated and retarded Florida's development. Such political self-perpetuation is no longer possible by virtue of the power placed with the people of the State of Florida periodically to review their Constitution in its entirety. Even a more moderate Legislature might be equally unwilling to address controversial issues which they perceive to be in their special domain. It is vital that the Constitution Revision Commission operate independently from the Legislature to effectuate the will of the people against the not-uncommon self-interest of the Legislature.

The Constitution Revision Commission as now set out in Article XI of the State Constitution provides for systematic review of the Constitution every 20 years. A Commission of 37 experienced, talented and able men and women of established leadership is automatically created to make written recommendations to the people for revision of the State Constitution - in whole or in part. Because of competing oversight demands made on it, the Legislature itself quite obviously would be unable to undertake such a comprehensive study of the Constitution. Sometimes the recommendations of the commission will be accepted by the people (as in 1968); sometimes those recommendations will be rejected by the people (as in 1978). Either way, the periodic constitutional review is a highly beneficial and significant governmental process.

During the 1978 session, over 800 proposed changes in the Constitution came from the people through public hearings. Seven of the 12 proposed amendments coming out of the Legislature in the last two years originated in the 1978 Constitution Revision Commission and were, in essence, identical to the Commission amendments. Three have already been adopted by the voters - and four more will be accepted or rejected on November 4. It is clear to me that other proposals of the Commission will be submitted to the people for acceptance or rejection in the future.

Without the Constitution Revision Commission, the people will retain only two ways to vote on proposed changes in the Constitution without legislative veto: through initiative petition or through a constitutional convention. The initiative permits consideration of a single subject rather than the comprehensive review envisioned by the 1968 Constitution; the procedural difficulties inherent in calling a constitutional convention make this avenue for non-legislative authorship of the State Constitution extremely impractical - and impossible.

state government and its policy-making legislative body, thus necessitating periodic review to prevent abuse and perhaps even despotism.

This audacious Amendment Number One is designed by the Legislature to deprive future generations of Floridians of the opportunity for overall constitutional reform without prior legislative permission. The Amendment thus serves no purpose of the people; rather it serves the interest of those who want only the Legislature to shape and control constitutional revision. The opportunity to exercise such power must be reserved to the people. Amendment Number One must be rejected. There must be no legislative

This letter quite obviously is too long for publication, although I would be quite pleased to have it published in whole or in part - either as a letter to the editor or an op-ed piece.

Constitution revision long has been a prime public and professional interest of mine. My purpose here is to secure your endorsement editorially. If it would be helpful to you or to other members of the editorial board of the Herald-Observer, I would be glad further to discuss this issue with you in person or by telephone. If you are interested, please call me, or in my absence, Jacqueline Allee, (813)223-1621.

Sincerely,
Chesterfield Smith

PBJC to turn cattails into alcohol

Palm Beach Junior College-Glades is now in the middle of the country's search for a source for a renewable liquid fuel course to lessen our dependence on OPEC oil.

The college has been awarded the largest federal grant in its history "for the research, development and demonstration of cat-tail farming and harvesting for use as a feedstock for alcohol production."

The project is to be housed at the Glades campus.

The initial grant, announced by Rep. Dan Mica Wednesday, Oct. 22, is for $400,000 with the total amount expected to reach $4,980,629, for the first phase of a five-year project.

Research in Minnesota and in South America has shown that the cattail, with its thin, erect, spiraling leaves, is a nearly perfect trapper of solar energy.

The Minnesota research suggested 1,000 gallons of alcohol per acre as compared to 200 gallons for an acre of corn. Some other possible sources of alcohol, notably sugar and cassava, are probably superior to corn, but not up to cattails as an energy producer.

Yields in South Florida are expected to be higher than those in Minnesota, and, in addition, there is the possibility of three crops per year.

In announcing the grant, Dr. Edward M. Eisey, PBJC president, pointed out that cattails are not used as a food source, and are considered to be an unwanted weed in many places.

"Cattails grow in marshy places that are unusable for most crops," he said.

"The possibility exists that we can provide a good part of the solution to some of our more pressing energy problems with a plant that requires little cultivation and utilizes waste or marginal land," he said.

Congressman Mica said that one of the strong points of the grant application was that it involved not only the college, but was a cooperative effort of education, industry and agriculture.

Lantana Boat Yard, whose president, Elliott Donnelly was part of the press conference announcing the grant, is already underway in the process of designing harvesting equipment, and will also be responsible for finding the most efficient distilling operation.

Grossinger Farms, at Six Mile Bend, is cooperating with the planting of the crops to be used in the experimental phase of the grant.

James Brannigan, director of the Palm Beach Junior College Foundation, through which all funds will be channeled, put together the different elements of the proposal.

He said the chief reason the college was selected for the grant rather than a prestigious university was the near-perfect location of the Glades campus of the college, at Belle Glade.

But another strong reason was the desire of the energy department for immediate, practical action, rather than scholarly, detailed research.

"Community colleges are ideally situated to work with local industry, and, in this case, local agriculture, in a marketplace type of setting," Brannigan says.

The research grant is designed to produce a modular, scaled down version of a full-sized farming and distilling operation, from which accurate estimates of market potential can be derived.

"We and the energy department are hoping that the natural potential of cattails can be converted into more miles per dollar at the gas pump," Brannigan says.

"We both want this to be done as soon as possible for very obvious reasons," he added.

Mixtures of gasoline and alcohol are the immediate practical result hoped for through the PBJC grant, but cattails also convert into methanol, and methanol is an even more flexible energy storage system than ethanol, according to a Department of Energy source.

Seminar slated

An in-depth look at water resource studies being conducted in Lake Okechobee and the Everglades Agricultural Area will be featured in a two-day "Shirt-Sleeve Symposium on Water Resource Studies," sponsored by the South Florida Water Management District (WMD). It will be held at Secret Woods Nature Center in Fort Lauderdale, Nov. 20 and 21.

The Symposium came about after members of the WMD Governing Board noted that nearly a dozen governmental agencies were active in South Florida, seeking solutions to water management problems. They wondered if there were some gaps, in the studies being conducted.

As a result, representatives of eight federal, state, and regional agencies met to plan what is hoped to be the first of a series of programs to better inform the agencies and the public about studies being conducted, results of these studies, and goals for the future.

Agencies participating in the Lake Okechobee/Everglades Agricultural Area session include: Department of Environmental Regulation, South Florida Water Management District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, U.S. Geological Survey and the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Lake Okechobee/Everglades Agricultural Area studies will be discussed from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. on Friday, November 21.

Registration fee for the two-day symposium is $20, one-day registration is $10. Registration fee includes the cost of lunch. Attendance is limited because of the size of the assembly hall. Persons wanting to attend should contact the Public Information Office, South Florida Water Management District, P.O. Box V, West Palm Beach, 33402. Tickets will be issued on a first come, first served basis.

On Friday, from 1 to 4:40 p.m. six agencies will delve into the problems of the Water Conservation Areas and Everglades National Park.

On Thursday, Nov. 20, the Kissimmee River and the Upper Chain of Lakes in Central Florida will be examined from 8:15 a.m. to 11:50 a.m.

Thursday, from 1 to 3:05 p.m. the subject of discussion will be the District's Upper East Coast Area, including Martin, St. Lucie and part of Okechobee.

Lady Crusaders win again

BELLE GLADE—The Christian Day girls volleyball team traveled to Moore Haven Monday night and lost another match to the Terriers.

The Crusaders won the first game 15-12. They lost the next two games 12-15 and 6-15 after senior leader Paula Anderson was injured.

Sherri Mann and Joni Davis led them to victory on Thursday against Kings Academy. They defeated the Lions in two games with scores of 15-4 and 15-1.

District volleyball matches will begin on Wednesday, Nov. 5 at the Christian Day School gymnasium.

From 3:05 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., panelists will review the work on the Lower West Coast of Florida, including the Caloosahatchee River and the Big Cypress Preserve.

Robert L. Clark, WMD Board Chairman, will welcome the panelists and guests to the meeting. Other members of the Board will act as moderators for the program.

Emergency Room

members indicated they were in favor of the plan and may take it up again in the near future.

Lennon assured the board he saw little difficulty in finding the doctors if they decide to begin the new service. The house doctors would eliminate the need for any of the medical staff to serve on the rotating emergency service.

In another matter, Lennon told the board members the hospital still hasn't been able to come to an agreement with the Palm Beach County Department of Human Resources Division of Social Services on what to charge the county for indigent patient care.

He read a memo from Social Services Director Alice B. Crossdale to Social Services Glades Coordinator Gene Cross saying no payments will be authorized for indigent patients treated at Glades General until a contract is signed and that payments will not be made for patients treated since Oct. 1 until the contract is signed.

Board Chairman Sandra Chamblie said she didn't believe the county could get away with not paying for the care since Oct. 1 because that had been authorized at the old rate.

Lennon said the problem came up several months ago when Mrs. Crossdale had sent him a contract for fiscal year 1980-81 under which the county would pay the hospital $174 a day for care, based on the hospital's Medicaid rates.

Trouble began, he said, when County Commissioner Bill Bailey noticed the price being charged by Palm Beach Gardens Hospital, which was more than $300 a day. He protested and the commissioners ordered a check into the rates being charged by all hospitals.

He said he marked through that figure, inserted the figure of $235.58, based on the cost to the hospital for a day's care, and mailed it back. It was duly signed by the Palm Beach County Commission.

Lennon noted that although Ms. Crossdale insists the county is only liable for paying the hospital Medicaid prices, there is no written history backing up that argument. He noted that the new price offered by the county is $178 a day, the lowest being offered any hospital in the county. Charges range up to more than $300. Everglades Memorial Hospital is being paid $225.29 a day.

Lennon said he understands Ms. Crossdale's decision means that all indigent patients in the Belle Glade-South Bay area will be transported to Pahokee.

Rather than costing Glades General the revenues, however, Lennon said that at the $178 the county is willing to pay, Glades General will save $50 a day for every patient sent elsewhere. He said the savings would total $50,000 a year.

The board instructed Lennon to follow through in his attempts to get the contract signed at a figure reflecting costs to the hospital rather than the Medicaid figures. The board also directed him to question the Medicaid figures provided by the state and compare them to those used for other hospitals.

"What it amounts to," Lennon said, "is that if a hospital can provide the same care to patients at a lower cost than other hospitals, that hospital is more efficient and it gets penalized for its efficiency."

Belle Glade commission serves notice on budget

BELLE GLADE-The City Commission served notice on department heads Monday that the tight budget adopted earlier this month will be adhered to, even when budgeted items cost more than allowed for.

That notice came when Police Chief D. Bill Mathis presented a bid tabulation to the commission for five new police cars in the amount of $39,100 from Bonavia Chevrolet, the only bidder.

The price quoted by Bonavia was $2,600 more than had been budgeted by the commission and Mathis' original recommendation was to wait until next month, when prices would be quoted under the state contract but he and City Finance Director and Acting City Manager Frank Anderson reversed that recommendation at the meeting.

Anderson and Mathis said they had learned a large lot of cars had been ordered by the City of Jacksonville and had been delivered at the same price per car as the state contract will be.

They said the savings would amount to $104 per vehicle but that savings would be more than made up by the cost of transporting the cars to Belle Glade from Jacksonville, where they would be delivered.

Anderson told the commissioners the only place he could come up with the extra $2,600 needed to buy all five cars was the city's cash reserves, a move the commissioners said during budget meetings they would not make unless absolutely necessary.

"We need to address the $2,600 difference," Mayor Tom Altman said, and what we're going to do about it." Altman said he wouldn't be in favor of dipping into cash reserves on the very first bid to be awarded in the new fiscal year, adding he would like to see the city get the fifth car but he would also like to see Chief Mathis cut $2,600 from some other place in his budget to get all five.

That opinion was echoed by Commissioners Dorothy Walker and Charles Goodlett after a motion by Commissioner Randy Davidson to wait for the state contract failed for lack of a second and a motion by Commissioner Claude Tindall and seconded by Davidson to buy all five cars, using reserve funds to make up the difference, failed when the other three commissioners voted it down, 3-2.

After consulting with City Attorney John Baker, Goodlett moved, and the commission approved, an idea to authorize the purchase of four of the five cars with an option to purchase the fifth car at a later date, assuming Bonavia approves.

Baker said Bonavia's approval will be needed because the bid was for five cars and he didn't know if the same price per car would hold for four cars.

In the meantime, Mathis was directed to scrutinize his budget for the year and see if he can find some place to cut $2,600.

In another problem, discussed during a meeting two weeks ago, the commissioners again withheld a final decision on who to do over a state grant to the municipal library.

The $6,000 grant, which would provide films and a public address system for the library, requires $3,500 in kind donations and $3,000 in cash as matching funds by the city.

The grant was approved during budget sessions but, although an arrangement was made for the in-kind matching funds, nothing was done at the time about the $3,000 cash.

When the matter came up earlier, Mayor Tom Altman said he assumed the $3,000 would come from other areas in the library budget but Anderson said Librarian Phyllis Lilly had told him she asked Anderson whether he didn't know where she, Miss Lilly meant she could come up with the would rather give up the $3,000 cuts in other areas. The commissioners then asked Anderson whether he didn't know where she, Miss Lilly meant she could come up with the grant than make the necessary cuts in other areas and he said he didn't know, that he wasn't aware whether Miss Lilly understood that was the way things stood.

The commissioners told him that's the way they understood it.

Pahokee BPW meets the candidates at the Prince Theatre

PAHOKEE — More than 100 residents turned out to meet the candidates Saturday night at the Prince Theatre in what was termed that most organized and best produced forum the candidates have seen in six months on the campaign trail. "Only in Pahokee," another firm when the council meets with Automated Systems in a special workshop session Monday at 7 p.m. The Council must find an alternative dumping system before the Pahokee landfill closes on Nov. 15, when all garbage will be transported to Belle Glade.

In other action the council approved resolution by Hugo Raineri to attempt to find someone to operate the concession at Pahokee Harbor. A lease would probably be the best solution, McKinstry said.

Norman also added that he had applied for a harbor improvement fund. The city has already budgeted $50,000 for a new harbor facilities but city consulting engineer James Sloane said the costs for a new floating dock, boardwalk, outdoor theatre and various other facilities would probably exceed that amount.

An insurance company representative was at the meeting to discuss the possibility of a dental insurance plan for city employees. The plan would cost the employees approximately $100 a year, would be deductible and would cover, depending on the type of work done, from 50 to 80 percent of dental costs. However the plan must be accepted by 75 percent of the employees before it can be initiated.

The Council agreed to distribute explanatory flyers to city employees concerning the dental plan.

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the Council is Nov. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

said state House of Representative District 79 candidate Eleanor Weinstock, "would you get a reception like this," as the Pahokee High School Band marched by the reception being held for the candidates at the Chamber of Commerce.

"You can campaign all over the county," Mrs. Weinstock went on, "but you have to come to Pahokee to get treatment like this."

Mrs. Weinstock was one of 27 candidates who showed up for the event, put on by the Pahokee Business and Professional Women's Club.

Three other candidates who had said they would be present weren't in attendance.

"This is the first Meet the Candidates Night," Master of Ceremonies Doris Sasser cracked to open the program, "and I hope it's the last."

The evening began with six minutes talks given by representatives of President Jimmy Carter and candidates Ronald Reagan and John Anderson, then proceeded through state representative candidates, who had three minutes, to countywide candidates, who had two minutes each and wound up with a question and answer session in which members of the audience had a chance to quiz the candidates on their positions and philosophies.

The first speaker was Shirley Watson, speaking for Anderson. She said the Anderson campaign is based on the philosophy that Americans must make investments in the country's future.

She said the keystone to his program would be to use fiscal controls available to control inflation and to put Americans back to work by using two $4 billion programs for redevelopment and transportation improvements.

Bruce Spector, speaking for President Carter, listed some of the President's accomplishments during his first term, saying Carter saved the Social Security system, managed to pass 80 percent of his legislation through Congress, a record for modern presidents, forged the first peace links between Arab and Jews, increased real defense spending, instituted the International Sugar Agreement to stabilize sugar prices and eliminated 1000 OSHA regulations and 20,000 wasteful government jobs.

Tom Kleppe, speaking for Reagan, said the issue in the Nov. 4 election are the economy, unemployment, defense and foreign relations, claiming Jimmy Carter has failed in all four areas.

Kleppe said inflation and unemployment are now higher than what Carter said in 1976 was unacceptable. He said Reagan proposes a tax cut that would prove an incentive by allowing tax exemptions for home buyers and businesses investing in new building or equipment. He also said Reagan would bring back the B-1 bomber, the Trident missile system and other defense programs.

In the District 80 House race, Gary Israel said he had been instrumental in requiring service stations to post gas prices and said he is in favor of better education while Jim Watt said he was one of only two freshman legislators chosen last year to sit on the Finance and Tax Committee, pointing out he supports the Right to Work law and that teachers have endorsed him.

Candidate and incumbent Gene Campbell in District 82 said he is known for his honesty while challenger Bernard Kimmel said he, as an eight year veteran of the Palm Beach County School Board, is interested in furthering educational programs at the state level.

District 83 candidate Frank Messersmith promised to protect the taxpayer's pocketbooks while his opponent, Mack Freeman, is proposing massive social programs.

State Attorney challenger Nelson Bailey said the difference between him and incumbent David Bludworth is that he (Bailey) is a strong and aggressive lawyer who would provide leadership

Water Management District did the work... and they had problems before the ramps were finally completed.

One problem in common with the racquetball courts and the work done at the country club was that building permits hadn't been issued and that City Building Inspector Barry Underwood has also refused to issue Certificates of Occupancy for either project.

Underwood said there was some question about whether the same process required of private contractors is also required by projects performed by the city, although he said Acting City Manager Frank Anderson ruled they would be followed. That ruling came in a meeting two weeks ago.

Underwood said the certificates hadn't been issued because he had done no inspections and had seen no plans in either project. He said he'd made no inspections because he hadn't been invited, which he said is the normal process.

Mayor Altman said he believes the city is required to go through the usual process of inspections and permitting, basing his belief on a requirement made several years ago for an architect's seal on plans for an addition to the city's police station, which was also built by city employees.

Sanders said he wasn't sure but he didn't believe the process is required when the work is done by city employees.

Sanders went on to say he wasn't aware of any large problems when the racquetball courts were being built, that he hadn't been approached by anyone, including Underwood. He also commented that he believed it to be the duty of the city building inspector to stop construction being done without a permit whether he's invited to inspect it or not.

Sanders also said he wasn't aware of the fact no building permit or certificate of occupancy had been issued for the courts, indicating he resented the implications he had heard that he has attempted to cover up problems under his administration.

"Whenever I heard we were having problems," he said, "I'd take it to the department head involved and we'd do what we could to rectify it."

"The only real problem I recall hearing about during the construction of Airport Park was when I heard the concrete bases we'd poured for light poles wouldn't do the job. We checked it out, broke up the bases we had poured and poured new ones."

No decision was immediately made Monday night on whether the city would attempt to build new handball and racquetball courts, which were among the most-used facilities at Airport Park. But Altman said Tuesday he intends to push for new construction as soon as possible, using the funds remaining from a project to enclose the three wall courts as seed money.

Unbeaten Gators whip John Carroll

By Wayne Wallace
Class AA John Carroll High School may not have had much respect for that little Class A team from Belle Glade before Saturday night but it's a good bet they've got it now.

The second-ranked Glades Day Gator hammered out a 20-7 win over Carroll, the only team to defeat the third-ranked AA Clewiston Tigers this year.

The Gators wasted no time in putting points on the board. On their second possession quarterback Nacho Bueno scrambled out of the pocket to complete a 38-yard missile to Richard Schiele, which put the Gators in scoring position at the Rams 26-yard line.

Two plays later fullback Jason Shelton broke through the Rams defensive line and hurtled 21 yards for the touchdown. The Rams came right back, however, and it appeared the game would be a high-scoring offensive battle when, after advancing to their own 46, Rams halfback Rob Hunter got loose in the Gator secondary and sprinted 54 yards for Ram touchdown and evened the score at 7-7.

But the Gators remained undaunted by the Rams show of strength and on their next possession began the first of a series of slow clock-eating drives that would prove to be the undoing of John Carroll.

The Gator offensive line pushed the Rams practically at will as powerhouse rushers Rivas and Shelton moved the Gators quickly downfield.

Bueno combined with wide receiver Tommy Wilson twice on an over-the-middle cross pattern, which the Gators used successfully throughout the game, to put the Gators once again within reach of the Ram end zone at the 4-yard line. On the next play Rivas plunged across the line for the score. The PAT missed and the Gators took a 13-7 lead.

The Rams missed an opportunity to close the gap when their deepest penetration of the night ended up in three incomplete passes and a missed field goal from the Glades Day 29-yard line.

After the half both defenses began to shut down their opponents but the Ram offense finally began to come alive. After exchanging punts several times it seemed as if Carroll had gotten unlimbered when quarterback Rick Gordon sneaked up the middle for 64 yards to the Gator 36. However three plays later the Rams opted to go a fourth down conversion and Gordon was sacked for a seven yard loss.

The Gators tacked on an insurance touchdown midway through the fourth quarter behind the running of Shelton and Tobin Vanscoy, playing his first game for the Gators. The score came following a 26-yard run by Vanscoy and a nine-yard drive by Shelton for the touchdown.

The Gators played ball-control through the remaining minutes. The Rams threatened to score with three minutes remaining but the drive fizzled when Gordon failed to convert on a fourth and two at the Gators 37-yard line.

Glades Day completely dominated the statistics with Bueno completing four of ten passes for 96 yards compared to 18 yards for the Rams. The Gators had 265 yards rushing compared to Carroll's 196, 118 of which came on the 54 yard-run by Hunter and the 64-yard run by Gordon.

Crusaders roll over Westwood, 27-0

BELLE GLADE -- The Christian Day School football team rolled over Miami Westwood Christian, 27-0 Friday to chalk up their third win of the year and make possible the school's first-ever winning football season.

The Crusaders, coached by Gus Harmon said, "We've been getting better all year and if we can win that one, it'll mean a possibility of going to a 3-4 record for the year. The only game after St. Edwards is Broward Christian and we beat them when we played them before."

The Crusaders, in their win over Westwood, held the Warriors to 43 yards rushing and 101 yards in the air while three Christian Day running backs reeled off more than 100 yards each for a total of 369 yards rushing. Alex Morales put the ball into the air for another 84 yards for a total offense of 443 yards.

Fullback Kent Davis led the Crusader charge with 120 yards rushing, one touchdown and two extra points.

Alex Morales was the other spark plug in a dual ignition system Harmon employed Friday, running for 103 yards, including one touchdown, and passing for 84 more yards, including a TD and two extra points.

Ronnie Cameron ran for another 108 yards rushing and a touchdown and Philip Echols posted 40 yards.

Harmon said he thought his charges did a "pretty good job on offense and defense" in the first half but was unable to post points on the board.

The biggest dose of excitement in that half came with 10 minutes left in the half and Westwood line in a fourth down situation.

The Warriors kicked a field goal, putting the first points of the game on the board, but when a roughing the kicker penalty was called on Alex Morales, the Westwood captain opted to accept the penalty, giving the Warriors a chance for a touchdown with a first and ten on the Crusader two yard line.

The Warriors didn't reckon with an unyielding defense that held for four downs in the shadow of the Crusaders goalposts, however, and the threat was turned away.

After that, it was the Crusaders' turn to threaten, driving 75 yards to the Westwood 16 yard stripe. That was what Morales called an audible on a third and one situation, one of the CDS linemen didn't hear the call and went downfield to make the block called for in the play called in the huddle.

The audible called by Morales was a pass play and the blocker was called an ineligible receiver downfield, giving the Crusaders a third and 16 situation.

In the second half, the Crusaders received the opening kickoff and Morales used the away left play to run 60 yards for a touchdown on the first play from scrimmage. The kick failed and CDS held a 6-0 lead.

The Crusaders struck again a few minutes later, after holding the Warriors and forcing a punt after the kickoff. Two plays later, Morales connected with Jimmy Hagar on a 50-yard scoring pass. The run failed and the Crusaders held a 12-0 lead with 9:33 left in the third quarter.

The Warriors were able to put on a drive to the Christian Day 32 yard line on the ensuing series of plays but James Barnwell stopped that threat by recovering a fumble there, setting up the Crusaders' third score of the afternoon.

CDS mixed several plays to move the ball to the Westwood 40, where Kent Davis took a handoff and blasted off right tackle for a 40-yard strike to the end zone. Morales passed to Davis for a two-pointer and the Crusaders led, 20-0 at the end of the third quarter.

The heat started taking its toll in the final period and after Westwood was held to three plays after the kickoff, the Crusaders took the ball on their own 30 and marched 70 yards to score in ten plays.

That drive was marked by several running plays and a 44-yard pass from Morales to Davis but Ronnie Cameron was the player who hit paydirt on a six-yard running play. The kick was good and the scoring was over, with the Crusaders chalking up a 27-0 victory.

Harmon paid particular praise to his defense, led by Cary McKee and Kent Davis with 11 tackles each. Alex Morales and Thomas Padgett had ten tackles each and interceptions were picked off by Jimmy Hagar, Philip Echols and Kent Davis.

JOHN CARROLL rusher coughs up football under pressure from the Gators. The Rams recovered the ball, but not the momentum, losing 20-7.

Rhames sparks Raiders to win over Lake Worth

By Dean Jones
BELLE GLADE-- Junior quarterback Jacob Rhames threw a touchdown pass and bucked over from a yard out for another TD Friday night to lead the Glades Central football team to a 20-19 squeaker over Lake Worth in a pouring rain.

The Raiders struck for first blood late in the first quarter but trailed most of the game until they came alive in the fourth quarter and posted two touchdowns in quick succession, but it took a bobbled snap from the Trojan center with 1:11 left in the game to ice down the game for the Raiders.

The first score of the game was set up when the Raiders, on their third possession, started from their own 16, mixed two runs by Randi Rutledge and a pass from Rhames to Greg Hall to work their way out to their own 37 before Rhames was sacked on his own 31 yard line.

On third and nine, Rhames connected on a pass play to Jessie "Jet" Hester for a 69 yard touchdown, then kicked for the extra point, giving Glades Central a 7-0 edge.

The second period, when the Trojans received a punt on their own 38 and moved it 43 yards in four plays. A field goal attempt from the 19 was no good and the ball went over the end zone. The Raiders at their own 20 with 4:18 left in the half.

Three plays later the Raiders, led by quarterback Leonard Camel for the first time this year after breaking his arm in practice a week before the year's first game, were on their own three yard line and Tommie Duhart punted from nine yards deep in his own end zone.

An unsportsmanlike conduct call on the Trojans gave the Raiders a new lease on life and first and ten situation on their own 19 yard line but a play later, Camel fumbled the ball, setting up the Trojans' first scoring drive from the Raider 14 yard line. The kick failed and, with 19 seconds left in the half, the Raiders had a 7-6 edge.

Gregory, on a fourth and 16 situation at his own 43 yard line, faked a punt and passed to Stanley Shakespeare at the Raider 32 for a first down and keep the drive alive. Five pass plays later, Gregory fired a pass to wide receiver Vince Brown, who carried the ball 17 yards for a six-pointer. The kick was good and Lake Worth took the lead, 13-7 with 5:11 left in the third period.

Early in the fourth quarter, the Trojans ignored a fourth and 15 punting situation and the Raiders recovered the ball on their own 40 when an attempted pass was in complete.

The Raiders did their own punt fake three downs later but it almost didn't work when Jeffrey Willis couldn't find a receiver open and ran the ball to the sideline, getting just enough yardage for the first down.

Glades Central turned the ball over anyway four plays later at the Trojan 37, when a pass from Rhames to Hester fell just short of the first down. They had a second chance a few minutes later, however, when the Raiders punted to the Raider 45 yard line. Rutledge, playing instead of Greg Bain, who was hurt in the second series of plays, ripped off a first down run of ten yards to the Lake Worth 38, where the Raiders stalled until Rhames completed a pass to Ray McDonald down at the Trojan 15 on a fourth and ten play.

The Raiders kept the ball on the ground for the next three plays, with Willie McCoy picking up four yards to the 11. Rutledge earning three to the Trojan eight, and another seven to the one and Rhames diving over from the one to score the touchdown. Rhames' kick was good and the Raiders took a slim, 14-13 lead with 3:26 left on the game clock.

The beleaguered Trojans received no respite or chance to score when they took the following kickoff. Wester received the kickoff but was hit so hard by a Raider that the ball popped up into the air and Robert Johnson picked it off for the Raiders at the Lake Worth 28 yard line.

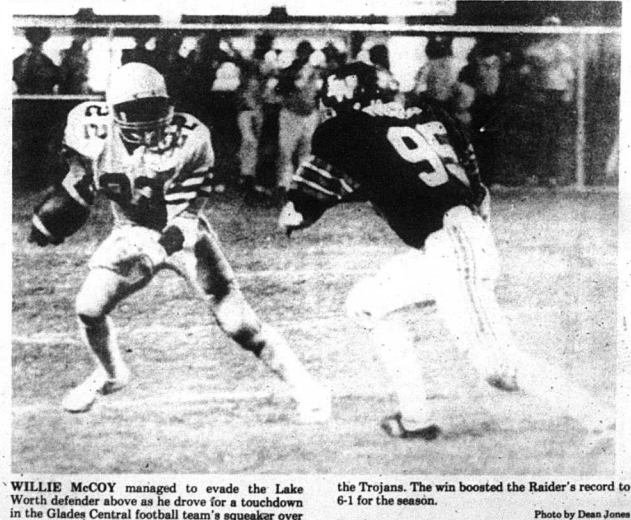

and several other "civilians" on the sideline got a closer look at the play than they cared to when Rutledge was forced out of bounds by three or four Trojan tacklers. When the players were cleared off the pileup, Miss Lealand lay stretched out unconscious, not coming around until after Willie McCoy, two plays later, evaded blockers to carry the ball into the end zone from nine yards out. She was cheering with everybody else a few moments later when the Raiders had gone out in front, 20-13. By this time, what had the Trojans. The win boosted the Raider's record to 6-1 for the season.

Belle Glade commission eases rummage sale requirements

BELLE GLADE — The city commission directed City Attorney John Baker Monday night to find a way to ease the requirements for non-profit rummage sales after the commissioners were told the existing ordinance created a hardship.

Dixie Evans appeared before the commission on behalf of the Glades Area Association for Retarded Citizens (GAARC) and said the requirement that a detailed inventory be required would be changed to an inventory broken down by types of merchandise offered.

Miss Evans said a recent sale held by GAARC included an inventory of almost 2,000 articles for sale. "The work was phenomenal," she said.

Baker said the main reason for the inventory was to guard against the use of rummage sales as a method to get rid of stolen goods and he said that could be done as long as a list of the donors or sellers matched with their merchandise is kept.

Baker said he thought he could come up with a recommendation for a change of the requirement the commissioners would approve.

In other business, the commissioners:

- Approved a recommendation that the Board of Adjustment grant a variance to Roe Steele to allow him to build apartments on the second floor of a laundromat and business office on Northwest 12th Street in an industrially zoned area.
- The commission had asked City Planner Joe

Fay Baker to come up with some way of allowing Steele to have the apartments, although they are in violation of the city's new zoning code, to honor an agreement made before the new code was accepted.

Steele, as he agreed, paid for a new sewer lift station on Northwest 12th three years ago with the understanding he would be allowed to build the apartments.

- Proclaimed the month of November as Beautification Month in Belle Glade, presenting the proclamation to Chamber of Commerce Executive Secretary Jewel Crane.
- Presented a resolution expressing the city's official gratitude and appreciation to Dr. Mendel J. Luce for his service on the Planning and Zoning Board since 1964.

begin as a misting rain was a steady downpour and when Rhames attempted to kick the extra point, it took the ball holder too long to set it up on the tee and the kick was blocked in what could have been a costly mistake for the Raiders.

With 1:41 left on the clock, the Raiders kicked off to the Trojans and Ricky Pinkney took it on his own 15, cut to the Raider sideline and sprinted 75 yards into the end zone, with an apparent touchdown being averted only when the officials ruled he'd stepped out of bounds on the Raider 40 yard line.

New Gator in town

There's a new skinkhead in town but you would never know it by looking at him.

His name is Tobin Vanscoy and he's the newest member of the Glades Day Gators football team. Vanscoy became eligible to play two weeks ago after transferring to GDS from Forest Hill High School in West Palm Beach.

Vanscoy said he likes playing for the Gators because of the positive mental attitude. That attitude, with a little help from the offensive line, helped Vanscoy rush for 46 yards in 7 carries Saturday night against John Carroll High School.

"It's a lot different playing here. At Forest Hill it was every man for himself. Here the team plays as a unit," the six foot, one inch, 185-pound junior said. Vanscoy, who commutes to school from Loxahatchee every day, said he always wanted to play for the Gators.

"It was just a matter of money. My father finally saved enough to send me here and I really like it. Here no one gets jealous if you make a big play."

"At Forest Hill there was a lot of tension between the blacks and whites and it got so no one really cared about the game, and was just playing for himself."

Vanscoy said he would like to play college football but hasn't decided on any school in particular yet.

And another thing. The Gators plan to shave his head "anyday now," Vanscoy said. "I don't mind. It makes me feel like part of the team."

and the ballholder couldn't set up in time, leaving him wide open to Glades Central linemen who had torn through the line of scrimmage to smother the PAT attempt.

From that point on, Raider Coach Ben McCoy sent in orders for Rhames to fall on the ball and eat up the clock, which ticked away to zero after Rhames fell on the ball on second down.

Although Glades Central was more successful at moving the ball on the ground, with Ruledge carrying 18 times for 59 yards and Willie McCoy for another 29 and a touchdown, they still relied on their air attack to pick up most of their yardage. The team managed 132 yards passing and 81 more on the ground, compared to 126 aerial yards for Lake Worth and 42 yards rushing.

Tony Moore led the Raider defense with 11 tackles and a fumble recovery, followed by Michael Stinson with nine tackles and Stanley Johnson with eight. Hester made seven tackles and intercepted a pass.

The victory boosted Glades Central to a 6-1 record for the year. The Raiders' game against Suncoast scheduled for Friday at Suncoast, was rescheduled last week for this Thursday at the request of School Superintendent Tom Mills, who preferred no county games on Halloween night.

That change of schedule also pushed the junior varsity game against the Atlantic JV, scheduled for Thursday evening, to 7:30 tonight.

BELLE GLADE — With the City of Belle Glade Recreation Department's flag football season halfway through the winter season, Taylor, coached by Anthony Williams, leads the division standings with a 7-1 win and loss record.

Taylor, sponsored by Taylor Funeral Home, is followed in the standings by the Buccaneers, Chiefs and the Clewiston Merchants.

J.T. McCoy, parks supervisor, said the teams play twice a week on Monday and Wednesday at Lake Shore Park beginning at 7 p.m.

McCoy said the games are opened to the public and that he wishes more community support would be given to the teams.

In addition to the adults team, the city is also sponsoring a youth flag football league.

McCoy said the lack of community support at the games is sometimes less than desirable, although the kids and the adults are having a good time.

"The kids look forward to seeing their parents and friends on the sideline, cheering them on," added McCoy.

The youths play on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 7 p.m. at Lake Shore Park.

With the season to last until Nov. 10 before tournament play begins, McCoy and Willie Floyd, McCoy's assistant, and the team coaches are looking forward to seeing the number of spectators at the games increase.

In Monday's game, the Buccaneers defeated the Clewiston Merchants by a score of 20-7.

Preston Vickers was cited for his outstanding performance.

Vickers ran for three touchdowns in the game and had a number of interceptions against the Merchants.

Ben Cutshaw, Robert Christensen, Emory Kelly, Mike Hatfield, G.K. Smith, Malcolm Wilson, Roger Dunaway, Donnie Watson, Michael Cameron, M. Dean Perry and Jim Veale, all of Clewiston, are members of the Clewiston Merchants.

Taylor defeated the Chiefs in Monday's game 21-7. Bruce Williams, a member of the Taylor team, contributed to Taylor's scoring drives when he threw several touchdown passes into the end zone.

Other team members of the Taylor team include Aaron Johnson, Marvin Davis, Pete Rolle, Marvin Allen, Willie Wright, Bruce Williams, Charles Colebrooks, J.D. Patrick, Levon Williams and Bruce Randolph.

The officials for flag football are Daniel Byrwood, James Spencer, Willie McDonald, Melvin Lockett and Norman Thieu.

in the courtroom. Blutworth pointed out he had opened a full time office in the Glades.

Property Appraiser David Reid noted he'd married a Pahokee girl, said he'd been a property appraiser for 19 years and would fight for property owners while challenger John Underwood said he believed in fighting for all the people, challenging property owners in the audience to compare their property appraisals with the neighbors; that if they found no discrepancies to vote for Reid but if they found discrepancies, to vote for him.

Sheriff candidate Frank Flannery cited his experience as a law enforcement officer in a variety of offices of various sizes, saying the issues are the budget and drugs. Sheriff Richard Willie reminded the audience "of all the drug busts" they've read about in the newspapers, said the Sheriff's Office is "together" more than ever in the past and cited honors received from various organizations, including the fact he'd testified two years ago before Congress on the success of his drug prevention program.

Supervisor of Elections candidate George Blanck said he would never have bought "this cranky computer" and said he is against opening ballot boxes at the precincts. Incumbent Jackie Winchester wasn't present.

County Commission District One candidate Bill Taylor asked voters to look at the experience of him and incumbent Peggy Evatt, citing his experience at the city and state levels. Mrs. Evatt agreed the voters should look at their experience, saying she was the only one with four years experience, saying she was the only one with four years experience on the county commission.

County Commission District Two candidate Chuck Potter said he believes he can help Glades commissioner Bill Bailey get SR 80 four-laned, and effect zoning changes. Incumbent Dennis Koehler said housing is the major issue on the county level and said he has been trying to find more. He also said he has worked well with Bailey, giving up a Congress Avenue road project to fund the county health center being built here.

District Five Commissioner Bill Bailey said it was good to be home, that he had been born in Pahokee and could remember sneaking into the Prince Theatre's balcony. He also cited accomplishments such as helping refurbish the theatre, getting a Palm Beach Junior College Glades auditorium funded, a regional park and Airport Park in Belle Glade, tree removal on SR80, US441 and US98. Challenger James Whited introduced himself as the man who had moved to Pahokee to run for Bailey's office, saying he has now lived there for two weeks. He read excerpts from a letter from David Blutworth saying he had done nothing wrong in qualifying for the contest and said he is aware of problems in the Glades district and throughout the county, citing jails and housing.

GLADES Area Association for Retarded Citizens was honored Saturday as the "Florida ARC unit of the year." GAARC and Palm Beach ARC shared the coveted award. Mrs. Edith Hooten, third (from left) president of FARC congratulates members of the GAARC; Alma

Henry, secretary of the Board of Directors; John Hooker, vice-president; Sandra Chamblee, president; Laura Collier, secretary of GAARC, Evelyn Johnson, board member and Tricia Blash, executive director of GAARC.

GAARC named "ARC of the Year"

ORLANDO -- Outstanding achievement in various fields related to mental retardation was recognized at the 1980 annual meeting and training conference sponsored jointly by the Association for Retarded Citizens of Florida, Florida Association of Rehabilitation Facilities, Florida Chapter of the American Association on Mental Deficiencies and Florida Rehabilitation Association.

Experts in the field of mental retardation gathered at the Hilton Inn in Orlando Oct. 22 through 25 for the annual conference.

In addition to the many workshops and planning sessions at the convention, efforts to accurately portray retarded people in the media, to hire handicapped workers, to teach retarded students and their teachers, to provide leisure activities and to volunteer in community programs were recognized by ARC of Florida with state and national awards.

The Association for Retarded Citizens of the Glades Area, represented at the conference by Mrs. Tricia Blash, executive director, Mrs. Sandra Chamblee, president of the Board of Directors; and John Hooker, vice president of the Board, were all recognized at the convention as "ARC of the Year."

GAARC shared the title with the ARC unit of West Palm Beach.

At the awards luncheon held Saturday, Mrs. Blash also received the "Executive Director of the Year" award.

Mrs. Laura Collier, secretary for GAARC, was selected "Outstanding ARC Employee of the Year."

Broman Cumpton, chairman of GAARC board of director's building committee, received the coveted "Friends of the Retarded" award for his untiring contributions to the local chapter.

Nominated for the award by GAARC Board of Directors, Cumpton was responsible for securing a $10,000 donation from the Quaker Oats Foundation to GAARC. The donation assisted GAARC with the purchase of St. Lutheran, Peter's Church as a school and office for GAARC.

John Hooker, a member of the Civitan Club of Belle Glade accepted a National award from the Civitans International for GAARC in recognition of a educational manual authored by Blash in conjunction with planned parenthood of the Glades and the Palm Beach County Extension service.

Alma Henry, secretary of the Board of directors, accepted an award for the Association in recognition of their efforts to raise funds for FARC through a local skit-a-thon.

GAARC placed fourth out of 44 ARC units in Florida in raising funds.

GAARC also nominated several local newspapers for the outstanding "Media achievements award." None of the local papers received the first place award, but each received a certificate of appreciation from Edith Hooten, president of FARC, for their continuing efforts to accurately portray mentally retarded persons, and making the public aware of the many activities and programs of the local ARC unit.

Representing GAARC at the conference were Tricia Blash, Sandra Chamblee, John Hooker, Ricky McCoy, Laura Collier, Alma Henry and Evelyn Johnson.

Barber named new Winn Dixie Manager

BELLE GLADE -- Danny Barber of Ft. Pierce has been named manager of the Winn Dixie store located at 545 SW 16 St. at the Glades Shopping Plaza.

Barber, employed with the Winn Dixie Food Store chain since 1972, began his career with the organization as a bag boy while attending Ft. Pierce Central High School.

Since his employment eight years ago, Barber moved quickly in his promotions with Winn Dixie Stores, and is presently the youngest manager with the chain in South Florida at the age of 23.

Barber said he worked as a bag boy, produce manager, meat manager and assistant manager before moving up to his present position.

Barber, who came from the Vero Beach store number 257, also is one of three black managers affiliated with the 157 Winn Dixie stores between Vero Beach and Miami.

In addition to working at Winn Dixie over the past eight years, Barber also received a Business Administration degree from Indian River Junior College.

Although Barber once had ambitions of going into the medical profession as did his father, he says he enjoys his work at Winn Dixie and has encountered few problems since transferring to the Glades community.

Another member of the Barber family, Jerry Barber, Danny's brother, was the market manager of the Winn Dixie Store located on West Canal Street in Belle Glade a year ago.

Barber is the son of Dr. and Mrs. L.C. Hodges of Ft. Pierce.

Reachin' out on the air

By Wayne Wallace

There are many people we wish could be seen and not heard, but to be heard and not seen? Must be a rare breed indeed.

They are that exotic species known to the layman as disc jockey (pronounced radio announcer) and are what keeps America warbling "Just a Good Ol' Boy" and "you deserve a break today."

There are a few of the species nesting in the Belle Glade area, notably at station WSWN which transmits enough ions to bring Waylon to 18 counties. As might be expected, the DJ, when spotted looks nothing like the sound it makes when in the wild of the airwaves.

Jim Humphreys, a mature, distinguished member of the species, uses the "young voice" ploy to keep DJ hunters from moving in. However Humphreys said being a radio announcer (he does not like the term disc jockey) means just being yourself.

"You just have to be yourself on the air. I try to have the same identity on the air that I have on the street."

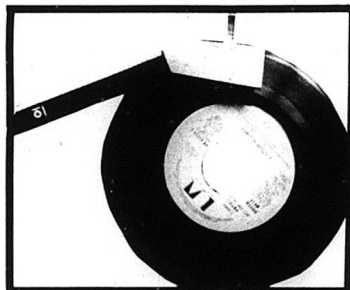

Scott Smalley, a newly hatched member of the species agrees.

"You've got to be what people like. They can spot a fake right away and that's one thing they don't want. And a smooth voice helps too. Abrasive, scratchy voices get on people's nerves. I get a kick when women call me and tell me I've got a nice voice."

Humphreys said being a DJ does not mean a loss of recognizability in a small community such as Belle Glade where everybody knows everybody else. However in a large city the opposite holds true.

"Your face is not an entity. Everyone knows your voice and name but not your face," Humphreys said. "I was in television for awhile and it was embarrassing to be recognized."

The actual labor schedule is a little less organized at the WSWN nest than at some of the large metropolitan flocks. The announcers usually come in about an hour before schedule to pick the records and tapes for their show. The station is gradually converting to tapes, Humphreys said because "they don't crack, break or get scratchy."

"We have free rein as to what songs we choose, as long as it's within the country parameter. When we went country we had to decide on bluegrass, traditional or contemporary country. We're pretty much traditional but we do play a lot of "cross-over"—Kenny Rogers, Charlie Daniels, Linda Ronstadt type music.

Humphreys said that although WSWN does not have a TOP 10 playlist as many stations do, they do keep Billboard magazine's top 100 country hits and pick what fits best into the traditional "cross-over" contemporary slots.

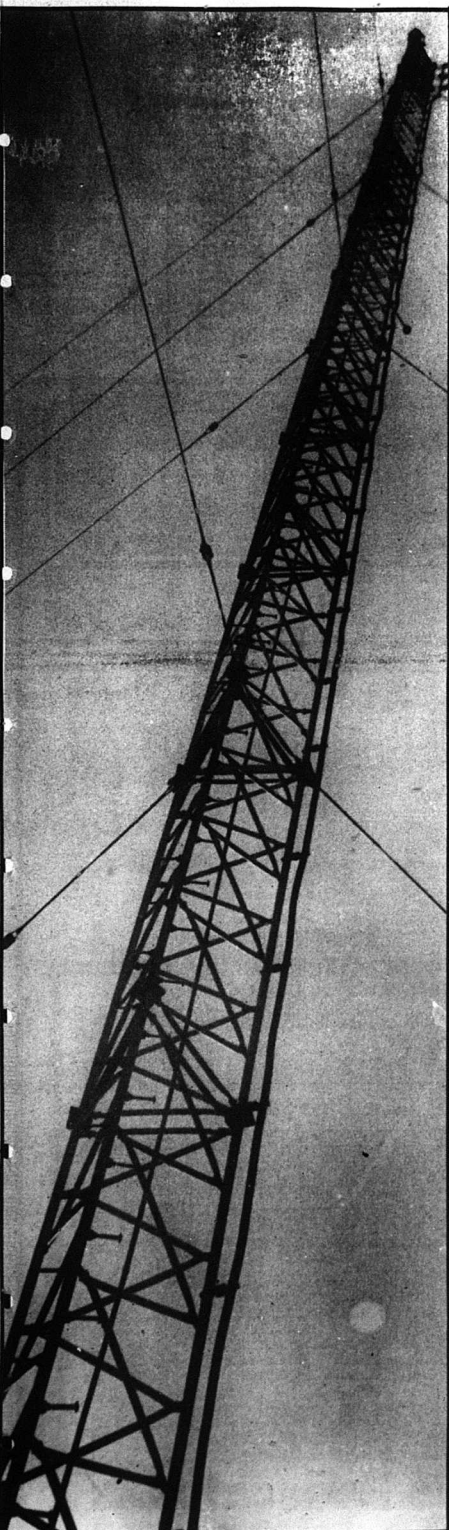

"There's a big controversy in country music right now as to just what is country and if such-and such artist is really a country singer," Humphreys said, but to me it is the music that is country, not necessarily the artist. Theoretically, any artist could sing a country song."

The disc jockeys try to think of the radio not just as music, but as entertainment, Smalley said.

"You just have to be yourself on the air
I try to have the same identity on the air that I have on the street"

DISC JOCKEY Scott Smalley enjoys working the midshift, when the most are listening. Although he enjoys the country sound at WSWN, he says eventually he would like to become a DJ at a rock 'n roll station.

REACHING SKYWARD. WSWN's antenna brings music to 18 counties throughout South Florida.

One of the adventures of Autumn is hiding in a pile of leaves. Not really hiding, though. The fun is in poking your head out and surprising someone!

When we're growing up, every season brings its adventures. Our days are full of opportunities for having fun.

Hopefully those days will also be marked by adventures that help build character. With each passing season the soul as well as the body needs to grow.

The opportunity for youngsters whose families are concerned for their spiritual development is in religious education.

We don't belong under the debris of Fall — our convictions are the heralds of a new Spring.

TAKING IT FROM THE TOP

By REV. DAVID T. EVANS
Everglades Presbyterian Church

The people of the land known as sinners and the professional practitioners of religion were both in the audience of the master story teller.

Here were the hungry and spiritually hopeless who were called the bad characters because of their lack of interest in observing the religious law and those who felt themselves to be so good that they set themselves apart from others.

To these two groups who were poles apart, Jesus told the parable (an earthly story with a heavenly meaning) of the two sons.

The prodigal (the younger son) took his inheritance and left the country. The elder brother stayed home and worked the family estate.

The younger brother went into a far country and wasted his money, which ran out about the time the famine came. He found a pig feeding hogs and would have eaten what was given to the animals.

At the bottom of the economic and social level the younger man came to a very simple conclusion. Even his father's servants at home were better off than he was. The solution was to return home, not as a son but as a servant. He would admit his mistakes and work as a hired hand in his father's fields.

Upon his return he was met by his father and restored to the family as a son and heir. He was given a cloak, a ring for his hand, and shoes for his feet, and the fatted calf was ordered butchered for a home-coming celebration.

The father did not question the son, who was definitely in the wrong, but waiting for him with open arms. While the celebration was going on the elder son came in from the field and asked what was going on. A servant told him of his brother's return.

His father came out to invite the elder son to the joyous occasion, but the son retorted angrily, "Here I have worked all these years and you have never given me a calf to have a party for my friends."

Jesus has brought the disobedient and the obedient before the loving father. The returning sinner is welcomed as a young man back from the grave. The pious, elder brother is made the pitiful creature who works as servant rather than the heir of the kingdom.

The father portrays God, who waits for us with open arms. The elder brother stands off, wanting credit for his service.

The father has been insulted by the younger son because custom dictated that the inheritance which he wanted was never divided before death. The prodigal is heading out demanding any settlement and therefore sinful before God.

The father acts in loving forgiveness, restoring the younger son to the family. The elder brother can only think of what his brother has wasted, not that he has returned.

The elder brother has missed out on the family relationship. "My son," says the father, "you are always with me, and everything I have is yours."

"Now your brother, who was dead in his rebellion, is alive. He who was lost in sin is found in my love!" Which son are you?

PB Countians to get early hint in races

Residents of Palm Beach County will have an early hint about how the county votes in the presidential race. County Supervisor of Elections Jackie Winchester said 300 votes will be counted in each of nine key precincts across the county as soon as the polls close and the information will be available to the news media immediately.

Mrs. Winchester said small precinct vote counters, such as those used to tabulate the results of city elections in South Bay, Belle Glade and Pahokee, will be on hand at each of the precincts.

As soon as the polls close, the first 300 vote cards will be fed through the counter in each precinct, with the results of the presidential race being sent immediately to Election Central.

"Most of these precincts are those selected as key precincts by the major television networks," Mrs. Winchester said, "and the other precinct, 118, is one which is usually considered a bellwether in Palm Beach County."

She said the precincts selected are 53, 98, 106, 111, 113, 137, 171, 199 and 212.

Once the sample count is completed, the cards will then be counted and placed in the transfer case along with the other ballots from the precincts to be sent to the central collection center.

Friendship women meet

BELLE GLADE — The Friendship Women's Club of Pahokee met Sun., Oct. 26 at the home of Mrs. Lucille Henry, 1257 Vaughn Cr., Belle Glade.

Mrs. Janie Sutton, president, called the meeting to order, and presented each member with a 1980-81 club manual.

Following the business meeting, the hostess served a late evening dinner, which consisted of fried chicken, barbecued ribs, collard greens, sweet peas, potato salad, sweet potato pie, cake and punch.

Club members in attendance included Marie Jones, Geraldine Killingworth, Janie Frazier, Lucinda Dolphin, Paul Allen, Jet Smith, Janie Sutton, Willie Terry, Bessie Mae Atkins, Mildred Taylor, Lizzie Mae McKinney and the hostess, Mrs. Henry.

Statistics say one out of every thousand babies born in 1975 can be expected to reach the age of one hundred.

While 23 of the 39 choices facing western Palm Beach County voters on the ballot Tuesday are between candidates, two in every case but the presidential race which has four, 16 choices must be made in a "for or against" manner.

Five of those choices are for or against proposed amendments to the state constitution. The other 11 are on whether the voters want to keep five District Court of Appeals judges and six Florida Supreme Court justices seated on their respective benches. The system of voting on the judges is called merit retention and while it isn't brand new, it is a relatively recent wrinkle some see Judges P16

FFVA responds to foreign competition

In a statement released last week, Florida Fruit & Vegetable Association has responded to a brief filed with the GSP Subcommittee of the Trade Policy Staff Committee, Office of the Special Trade Representative by AGREXCO (Israel) alleging a shortage of celery and peppers in the U.S. market during the winter months.

"This simply is not true," states FFVA Production & Marketing Manager Wayne Crain, who represented Florida growers in the initial hearing Sept. 30, in Washington, D.C.

In a rebuttal brief filed by Crain, FFVA quotes the Florida Crop & Livestock Reporting Service statistics which show the actual production figures.

"Florida is a major producer of both winter and spring celery and we should not endanger Florida production by allowing foreign countries to control our markets", Crain stated.

FFVA has been a leader in protecting the rights of Florida agricultural producers by actively opposing unfair competition by foreign interests.

Bank of Pahokee

November is here, bringing a whole new season of fishing

November is the month when a lot of good things began and a lot of unwanted things are gone. Among the good things are the more tolerable daytime temperatures and the cool, fresh night air.

Gone are most, if not all, of the insects which literally "bugged" you in the hot months. Gone, too, are the constant threats of line squalls putting down torrential rains, thunder and lightning interrupting water activities and even more violent storms have diminished.

Of course there is always the chance of a torrential downpour. We have had some severe ones in previous Novembers. In the main, however, we can look forward to more of the continental type of weather rather than the tropical.

In the event we get a cold front or two so much the better. They cool things to the point where both daytime and nighttime temperatures come into the delightful category.

A lot of people eagerly look forward to November and from past experiences a lot of fish, of every variety, do too. Cold fronts also mean that the fishermen will be taking along a jacket more often. The imminent arrival of one also means that boaters will be well advised to watch the weather. Be alert and take the necessary precautions, including getting off the water, as higher winds foretell the approach of the front.

On the other hand, "fish from the fronts", is no idle statement. For residents who normally do not fish, an approaching cold front can really "turn them on". Fortunate indeed, is the fisherman who makes contact with this happy situation for, he truly, may reap a harvest.

With the lake level under the 15 foot mark you are not going to catch fish in many of the areas you fished a year ago when the water level was much higher. With a few exceptions many areas will not have sufficient depth to sustain fish populations.

It follows, therefore, that more and more fish are going to be using less and less water. This doesn't mean you will fish only in the shallow areas. You don't be surprised that you don't come back to the dock with constant limits. You are still going to have to work at the game to locate concentrations of the variety of your choice and you are still going to have to experiment to find out which lure or bait will get the job done.

As more and more visitors return for the winter it might be a good idea to enlist the services of a guide for a day or two to find out just where the fish are and what they are interested in taking. They won't necessarily stay in the same locations nor will they take the same lures but, at least, you will have something concrete to go on.

I have always felt sorry for the fishermen who have five or six days to fish and catches little or nothing until the last day when he decided to take a guide. If he would have taken that guide the first day or two he would have had a real opportunity to have good action on the remaining days of his visit.

One has to keep in mind that most of your good guides are on the lake nearly every day whether they have clients or not. As a result they have a working knowledge of the movements of the fish and what will catch them. Keep in mind too, that there are some days when no matter how many fish you catch, you know, that the fish are not going to hit. That's an unfortunate circumstance but it does happen and no one feels worse about it than the guide himself.

For obvious reasons, among which, is the fact that he has his reputation on the line every time he takes a party out. More about this subject at a later date. Right now let us set forth the likely locales where the various varieties might be taken.

BASS: Our present lake level indicates that there will be the start of a general movement to the flats near the shore. There will also be concentrations in and behind the lake edges where water depths permit and food is abundant. Keep in mind that this is the time of year when they feed avidly. Sort of fattening up before the spawning activities commence.

Bass just don't actively feed, if at all during spawning. The fact that they take a live, large, lively shiner during spawning has nothing to do with their feeding habits. November is one of the better months to fish live shiners as, right now, they are feeding. A large, live shiner to them is like an ice cream cone to you when you were their age. Top water lures will still take plenty of bass if fished at the right time and in the right places.

There are two schools of thought on the best way to retrieve a top water lure, especially those with "props". Most experienced fishermen I have talked to are of the opinion that if the water is disturbed or muddied then fish very slowly. If the water is very clear, as it is right now, fish the lure in a short, jerky retrieve. The latter, for the reason, that in the clear water you don't want to give them to good a look at what you hope they will latch onto.

It is difficult indeed to make a suspicious bass strike. So work the peppergrass beds and the shore-

AROUND THE BIG "O"

Lorne Racicot

lines. Use spoons, top water lures and plastic worms. The best of all will be a live shiner. And one more thing. Don't give up trying!

BLACK CRAPPIE: (Speckled perch, specks, etc.) No matter what name they go by, they are still Black Crappie. They are in good supply and they will be caught. To be quite frank, they have been taken since early August. That they will be taking greater numbers in the cool months there is no doubt. The past two weeks they have been caught consistently in depths of 8 to 15 feet. Time and space does not permit an effort to try and pinpoint specific locations. For one, this is a very large body of water. To enhance your chances, however, consider thoroughly fishing the deep holes off the Rim Canal, the deeper channel edges, the lily-pod growths in the Rim Canal and the Center of the Rim Canal itself.

The center of the canal does not seem like the place to fish for them but, as evidenced by a party of seven about 10 days ago, they limited out fishing the center with Missouri minnows fishing approximately 15 feet deep. Others have had good catches along the edges of the pads fishing about 18 to 12 feet deep. Fish aren't always where you think they should be. They are where you find them. You have to work at it to locate them. The harder you work the "luckier" you get.

For those who prefer to jig for them consider using the red/white and also the silver/grey combos. They have been producing well of late. There are many other color patterns that will produce. Your camp operator can advise you of what they are taking best at a given time. And don't forget, these fish can change their color preference from hour to hour throughout the day. So don't rely on just one or two patterns.

BLUEGILL: (Bream, brim, etc. - here we go again) Don't expect to find any bedding activity at this particular time. For the 'gills it's over for this year. Oh, there may still be one or two with amorous intentions, but it is doubtful. These fish are still going to be caught by knowledgeable fishermen.

For the most part they will be found in the deeper waters where a live cricket or worm will entice them into striking. We may get some "chirpy" hatchlings, at which time, they will be at or near the surface and in addition to being taken on live bait will produce a bonanza for the fly rod addicts.

SHELLCRACKER: (Red Eared Sunfish, etc. - and that's all if it should be stated that for all intents and purposes, this husky member of the panfish family is DONE for 1980 then you can be sure someone is going to call up and tell us of a great catch he made that very day. So I'm not going to tell you they are DONE for this year. Simply stated, some shellcrackers will be caught on live worms. No one knows how many but, don't hold your breath waiting for them to bite.

As one gentleman aptly described November. "It is like coming out of a sauna into the cool of the evening. The fish think so too. Have at 'em!"

On the saltwater scene, sailfish, bluefish and kingfish (some in the "smoker" state) will be very active. The sails will be found "balling" bait and in the deeper water offshore the kings will be found. Surf fishermen will find the blues providing excellent action as they follow the hordes of mullet schooling just off the beaches.

One of the Atlantic side of the Keys hot action will be found among schools of ballyhoos are located. You can expect to take cero mackerel, amberjack, barracuda, blackfin tuna and barracuda as well as bottom fish such as yellowtail, grouper and snapper. On the Gulf side, bonefishing continues excellent, trout are on the upswing and though no one will be plentiful, patience can locate them. If things follow their usual pattern Spanish Mackerel should show up in Florida Bay.

From Flamingo north to the Ft. Myers area, redfish and trout will be active. Snook fishing can be great in this area in November. They will be located on the outside as well as in the creeks and bays. The latter present a great opportunity for plug casting.

By this month the larger sheepshead should be "in" providing great sport and fine eating. Look for them in the rocky holes in tidal rivers, passes and oyster bars. Mangrove snapper can also be taken in these same areas and some run to better than average size.

It's your choice. Fresh or salt. November is a great month to get with it on the fishing scene.

Art contest starts November 3

Entries will be accepted until 5 p.m. December 8. Official entry blanks may be obtained from the Duck Stamp Contest Coordinator, Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, 620 Meridian St., Tallahassee, FL 32301.

First cool spell gives bass 'lockjaw'

Hook, Line and Sinker

Buddy Norris

Well, winter is almost upon us. If you don't believe me just ask the bass out in the lake right now.

With our first cool spell of the year this past weekend, the bass have caught what dreaded disease called "Lockjaw." But don't panic. It is only a temporary sickness. Once they work the kinks out and adjust to the change in water temperature, they will be ready to meet the challenge of the ever-present bass fisherman.

In spite of the weather, some nice fish were brought to the scales. Steve Hearnsum of West Palm Beach weighed in a nice 7 3/4 pound bass caught on a plastic worm while fishing the peppergrass beds in the Bay Bottom area.

Mr. and Mrs. Adrian McGinnis of Charleston, W. Va. proved that shiners were still the big producer of lunkers. They surprised two big bass which tipped the scales at 7 lb. 15 oz. and 7 lb. 14 oz. Abb Peacock of Belle Glade decided to do some mix-and-match fishing on the lake. He finished the day with 2 mook (8 lbs. & 5 lbs.) and 4 bass (8 lbs., 5 lbs., 3 oz., 5 lbs., and 3 lbs.). Buck Harris of Belle Glade Marina took top honors in the bass division of the Sim's Fish Camp Catch-a-big-un contest. Mr. Harris took a nice 8 lb. lunker on a top water lure while fishing the Pelican Bay area. The speckled perch fishing is still strong in the rim canal south of Sim's with good catches reported mostly at night with live minnows (even dead ones too). Fishing with jigs is on the upswing with solid green and red head with white body jigs doing the best. Mr. Jerry Proulx of Belle Glade took top honors in the speck division of our weekly contest with a 1 lb. 2 oz. speckled perch. Mr. Proulx weighed in a good number of specks over one pound during the week.

Well, another week in my fishing diary has ended. If any of you readers have any comments that might help me to better inform you about fishing on the "big O", please feel free to come on down to Sim's Fish Camp and let me hear them. Till next time....

Area fishing report

by Lorne Racicot

Bass fishing has remained in the excellent category this past week. Not only the numbers but some real lunkers have come dockside in many areas. Inquiry indicates they are responding to many different lures. Live shiners are quite possibly producing most of the fish through the casting fraternity was not far behind.

Wind conditions permitting, the peppergrass beds are holding a lot of fish. Other good places are along the west wall, east wall, Mayaca Cut, the west side of Rita Island and the Hayfield. Artificial baits doing the job were spoons, crank baits, plastic worms, and in the early a.m., top water plugs. There is evidence of concentrations of fish and when located they are very cooperative.

Black crappie (specks) were of good size and condition and some good catches were made. At the moment it appears most of the speck action is from Clewiston east to the Belle Glade area. The deeper waters of the rim canal are producing most of the catches coming to our attention. Missouri minnows have been the best bait with jigs also producing fish.

No reports of shellcracker being caught but the bluegills are still active in the rim canal. Live crickets have taken good numbers of good size fish.

Celia Vance of Anglers Marina in Clewiston reports that Dr. Woody of Hollywood, FL had bass to 10 pounds. He lost another that he considered to be even bigger but, unfortunately, it got entangled in an unmarked fish trap and escaped. Paul Brooks of Alabaster, Ala. came in with bass to eight-and-3/4 pounds which were taken in the Hayfield on plastic worms. No limits of specks were seen but a number of good catches were made. The fish are of good size and condition. Several good catches of bluegill were made in the rim canal on live crickets. No shellcracker catches were reported.

Ken Hodge of Calusa Lodge at Lakeport tells us that bass fishing has been excellent in that area also. One gentleman from Ohio came in with a catch of bass that included a 10-pound lunker taken on plastic worms. Mrs. Gayle Yezer of Kentucky, using live shiners, brought in bass to 9-and-1/4 pounds. Prior to her catching the big one, her husband brought in fish to eight pounds on successive days. Very few fishing for specks right now but more activity is expected shortly by those seeking this particular species. No reports of bluegill or shellcracker.

Bozanna Zisler of Uncle Joe's near Moore Haven says bass have been excellent. No really huge fish caught but good catches, with some limits, to seven-and-1/2 pounds have come dockside. Specks have been on the slow side, mostly because not too many are fishing for them yet.

The same can be said for both bluegills and shellcrackers.

Remember all-day dove hunting

Hunters should keep in mind that the last two phases of Dove Season, Nov. 8 - Nov. 23 and Dec. 13 - Jan. 4 provide for all day hunting for this species. Shooting hours will be from one half hour before sunrise to sunset.

Science tactics enlisted to track down violators

This hunting season a new scientific field test will be utilized by the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission to better detect deer law violators.

"The procedure is a microscopic examination of deer tissue which will help wildlife officers determine whether a deer is a male or female when only a portion of meat is available as evidence," Lt. Col. Brantly Goodson, director of the Division of Law Enforcement, said.

At times, persons who take deer illegally, such as a doe, may try to conceal the fact. With our new microscopic analysis procedure we will be able to determine the sex of the deer and whether a violation has occurred," Goodson said.

The procedure was developed through the Department of Wildlife of the University of Florida in Gainesville. Sgt. Barry Cook of the Commission and Dr. James Frias and Dr. Peter Cohn of the university participated in the technique development.

Wildlife inspectors and investigators will be equipped with this fall with a kit to take tissue samples when a violation is suspected.

"Our field officers will be able to get an answer back from the university of Florida within hours. If necessary, to determine if there is a violation," Goodson said.

"This new test used in conjunction with a wide range of other scientific measures now available to our wildlife officers will make it very difficult for violators to go undetected," Goodson said.

Nagler named Miss PHS

PAHOKEE -- Miss Faryl Nagler, a senior at Pahokee High School, honor student, Chamber of Commerce STAR Student, editor of the school yearbook and drum majorette for the O.D. Express (the PHS Band) was crowned the 1980 Miss Pahokee High School at the Coronation Friday in the school's gymnasium.

Miss Nagler, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nagler of 397 N. Jupiter St., was voted Queen by the student body.

Miss Esta Funerburk was crowned the first runner-up; Belinda Murvin, second runner-up and Linda Bryant, third runner-up.

Miss Nagler and her royal court will preside over Pahokee's Homecoming festivities on Nov. 7.

Also presented at the Coronation were the candidates for Miss Homecoming, Rebecca Mapp, Brenda Cunningham, Shelia Key and Sylvia Robertson. Kevin E. Boynton, a member of the Coronation committee, said Miss Homecoming will be crowned at half-time during the Nov. 7 game.

voters have expressed confusion over.

The idea behind merit retention for the two court positions was to take politics out of the selection of appeals judges and justices but allow the people a chance to oust a judge if they so desire, giving the voters a final say in the matter.

The way it works is that a special committee submits recommendations to the governor when a new judge or justice is required. The governor makes a selection from the list and the jurist is seated.

Voters are being asked

The Coronation, a rainbow of colors and sweet hearts representing the many clubs and organizations on PHS campus, also served as a showcase to present the campus Queens.

in the Nov. 4 election to make what amounts to a vote of confidence or no confidence. The justices and judges aren't running against each other. If a majority votes "no," that judge or justice is removed and the selection process starts all over again.

All five of the judges on the ballot for the Fourth District Court of Appeals have been endorsed by the Palm Beach County Bar Association.

When Cubans arrive in this country, they are placed in well-prepared camps and provided for Haitians, by our State Department. He stated that such dishonesty, combined with gross incompetence, should scare anyone concerned with the Administration's human rights policy.

The Congressmen stated that black people should understand the connection between treatment of Haitian refugees and the regard which this Administration may have for black people at home. He also said that the President's failure to immediately address this issue means that he is not treating Haitians differently from other refugees. Certainly, racist overtones appear to exist.

Jody Powell heartily objected to the idea that any racism was involved in the Haitian refugee treatment. However, he seemed lost for ways to explain the difference in the Administration's handling of the Cubans and Haitians.

When he was reminded that Senator Richard Stone of Florida had been imploring the President to even-handedly deal with the Haitians, Powell responded that Stone is run-

Haitians treated unfairly

President Carter recently announced his open arms policy for the Cuban refugees but Haitians have received no such open arms welcome.

Senator Ted Kennedy, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, held a hearing on this worsening human crisis among Cubans, Haitians and other Caribbean refugees. Sen. Kennedy stated that the desperate flight on the high seas endangers the lives of thousands and threatens the economy of Florida and other states.

Among the many questions outlined by the Senator for answers, one was what the Carter Administration intends to do about the Haitian boat people and why it has closed its eyes to them when they reach our shores.

Representative Walter Fauntroy, in testifying for the Congressional Black Caucus, cited how the Haitians fleeing the brutal political persecution of Haiti's President Duvalier since 1972, upon reaching our shores are met with our government's shameful treatment. Our immigration authorities have jailed them, deported them and some have even been allowed to starve to death.

Fauntroy says the government tried to justify its policy of expulsion of Haitian refugees by evasion, half-truths and outright lies about human rights of Haitians, by our State Department.

Haitians are immediately placed in Florida jails, later processed, and most of them are returned to Haining for re-election. It was called to his attention that Mr. Carter is also running for re-election.

The Belle Glade Recreation Department is midway through their flag football season and the players and coaches are disappointed at the number of spectators attending the games.

Many young men and youths have volunteered their time to ensure our young people have a place to go after school for good, wholesome recreational activities. Let's show them we care and support them by attending the remaining flag football games the next three weeks.
